

INTERNATIONAL ACTIVITIES

International framework

Several major international initiatives, such as the Kyoto Protocol and the UN Millenium Development Goals have recognized renewable energy sources as a key elements in tackling both climate change and poverty alleviation.

Since its establishment Transenergie has developed a vast international experience, accumulated in very diverse environments.

This allows Transenergie to assist developing countries and emerging economies in establishing innovative energy strategies to achieve an increased utilisation of renewable energies.

Field of activities

- Renewable energy power supply
- Energy efficiency & demand side management
- Decentralised rural electrification

Clients

- Government institutions
- Energy operators
- Development and Cooperation agencies and donors
- International financial organisations
- Non-governmental organisations (NGOs)

Services

- Renewable energy and demand-side management strategies
- Feasibility studies and project development
- Technical assistance
- Training, capacity building

